DEFINING SENIORITY

RIGHTS

President B. M. slewell of the entiway employees afficially defines seniority rights as, first, the right of the senior employe to be the last to be taid off a reduction of forces, and second, the right of senior employes to have the first preference in the selection for vacancies in preferable jobs. He follows his definition with this statement: The railway employes, as a group, are steady workers. They will average between ten and twenty-five years in continuous service. With the increasing cortainty of permanent employment the longer they remain in the service, they are encouraged to buy homes and to establish thenselves in community activities with assurance of continuous livelihood. To deprive the men of these rights would operate so that in the event of reducing forces the railroads would be permitted to discharge the senior employes and to retain men en-

The leading grocers of your town invite you to call this week and taste the Tuberose products. You will like the luscious, sun-ripened fruits, the tender, full-flavored vegetables, the delicious sea foods.

TUBEROSE is the pick of the pack

Tuberose foods are packed in many different parts of the land - wherever the product is found in its greatest perfection. Tuberose peas, for instance, are selected in a section of Utah noted for its peas. The rich ripe pineapple is picked from the finest Hawaiian packs. The shrimp is the choicest that Mississippi produces.

For 33 years the Tuberose label has been a guarantee of quality in canned foods. Yet you pay only a trifle more for Tuberose than for products that bear no such quality guarantee.

The Tuberose Demonstration

Visit the Tuberose demonstration at leading grocers this week. See for yourself how really delicious these foods are.
